

Southeast Asia Public Policy Institute

Role: Policy Programme Manager (Bangkok-based)

The Opportunity

The Southeast Asia Public Policy Institute is a think-tank and research organisation working across the Southeast Asia region. Our mission is to support the development of solutions to some of Southeast Asia's most pressing policy challenges.

The Institute is looking for Policy Programme Manager candidates to develop our leading research programmes in our focused policy areas:

- Circularity and sustainability
- Southeast Asia's Energy Transition
- Digital economy and regulation

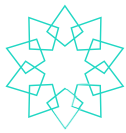

In this role, you will work with the Executive Director and the team to develop programmes of research and stakeholder dialogues exploring key policy challenges being faced at the regional level and in individual Southeast Asian markets, including Thailand.

Your research outputs and insights will inform policy thinkers and stakeholders across the region and beyond with a view to shaping the policy environment for a prosperous and sustainable future for Southeast Asia.

The position will be based in Bangkok, Monday-Friday, with significant time in the office and potentially some regional travel.

Responsibilities:

- Develop an annual programme to explore key policy areas across sustainability, energy and technology, comprising research projects, shorter insightful articles, and opportunities for dialogues
- Coordinate and conduct research, analyze data, identify trends, and draw insightful conclusions to inform policy recommendations
- Draft high-quality research reports, policy briefs, and other publications with clear and concise writing
- Work with existing partners – academic institutions, policy organisations, and the private sector – and develop new partnerships across the region
- Stay up-to-date on current events, research, and policy developments in Southeast Asia, particularly related to your area of focus.
- Organise opportunities to present and discuss research including roundtables and online seminars

Southeast Asia Public Policy Institute

- Present research findings to policymakers, stakeholders, and the public at conferences, workshops, and other events.

Qualifications:

Essentials

- Academic background in policy, political science, or an area related to energy, the environment or technology (or equivalent work experience)
- A minimum of 2 years of experience in a policy-related role, within a think tank, government agency, NGO or the private sector
- Experience working regionally or in at least two markets in Southeast Asia
- Demonstrated experience in conducting research, analyzing data, and writing clear and concise reports
- A passion for Southeast Asia, a commitment to evidence-based policymaking, and strong political awareness and instincts
- Excellent written and spoken English
- The legal right to work in Thailand

Desirable assets

- A strong understanding of sustainability, energy, and/or technology issues in Southeast Asia
- Fluency in a Southeast Asian language
- Experience with quantitative and qualitative research methods and with data analysis tools
- Excellent organizational skills and the ability to manage multiple tasks simultaneously
